Dr. Gayle received his medical degree from the University of Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh, PA, where he also completed his surgical internship and residency. In 1980, he completed his vascular and renal transplant surgery fellowship at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, Virginia and spent two years as a visiting fellow in organ transplantation surgery at the University of Cambridge Clinical School, in Cambridge, England. In 1981 Dr. Gayle joined Norfolk Surgical Group - Vascular Division. As a result of the merger of two separate vascular surgery groups, Dr. Gayle recently began practicing with Vascular & Transplant Specialists.

Dr. Gayle is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons (FACS), a Registered Vascular Technologist, and is board certified by the American Board of Surgery in vascular surgery. He is an Assistant Professor of Clinical Surgery at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, VA and serves on a number of hospital advisory boards and committees.
