Stephen B. Riggs, MD Urologic Oncology

Dr. Riggs earned his medical degree from the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston, SC, in 2001 after receiving his bachelor's degree at the College of Charleston in Charleston, SC, in 1997, graduating Cum Laude. He completed his Surgical Internship at Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville, TN, in 2002 and his Urology Residency at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson, MS, in 2006. Dr. Riggs then earned a Urologic Oncology Fellowship at the University of California Medical Center in Los Angeles, CA.

Upon completion of his Urologic Oncology Fellowship in 2008, Dr. Riggs returned home to Hampton Roads to join Urology of Virginia. He specializes in urologic oncology and lends extensive research and clinical experience to the treatment of urologic cancers, particularly bladder and kidney cancer. Dr. Riggs is part of a team of surgeons at Urology of Virginia skilled in the use of the da Vinci surgical system. Revolutionizing the treatment of urologic cancers, robotic assisted surgery enables more effective, minimally-invasive treatment with faster patient recovery.
